

BROOKLYN
INDEPENDENT
MIDDLE SCHOOL

Middle School Humanities Teacher [2025 - 2026]

Brooklyn Independent is a private school with a public mission for ALL kids.

Founded in 2019 by two longtime educators, Brooklyn Independent was created to reimagine the middle school experience for students, families and staff. We're built to disrupt the NYC education system by offering a much-needed alternative for families searching for an elevated, personalized, diverse education experience for their children. We know kids and families deserve more than what is often offered in the public school system but understand that private school can be unapproachable. At BKI we fill that gap – not with the rigor or traditional structure that has become the norm – but with care. We take an approach to learning that engages each individual student's curiosity, creativity, and humanity because we care to do things differently.

The Role

As a Humanities teacher at Brooklyn Independent you'll support BKI's mission by bringing our inclusive English Language Arts and History content to life in the classroom. As a school, we strive to interrupt the power dynamics in our community and build lessons that intentionally interrupt oppressive barriers to learning. This looks like project-based lessons with ample time for partner and group work, use of varied media and perspectives, classroom discourse that considers how every student can participate and transparent and equitable grading practices.

As a start-up school, every staff member plays an integral role in shaping our community and culture. We believe that experiences beyond our core subjects are just as crucial as humanities, math and science. As a Humanities teacher at BKI, you will support our culture work by running a morning and afternoon advisory, facilitating community building during circle, running an elective of your choice and contributing to our Friday Field Learning.

Who You Are

Our ideal candidate for our Humanities Teacher role has an unwavering commitment to equity work in the education space. Beyond that, they are a:

Content Nerd: You are always making content connections and considering how to bring that interesting article you read, TikTok you saw or podcast you heard into the classroom. When thinking about content, you go beyond objectives and skills to help students make meaning of texts and draw parallels to their own identities and perspectives.

Curriculum Builder: No lesson is ever "finished" for you. You always find ways to adjust, improve or make lessons more rigorous, interesting and meaningful for students. You are a planner and feel excited about the entire scope of curriculum building. From unit plans to individual lessons, you relish the opportunity to be creative and build learning experiences that reach every student.

Relationship Enthusiast: Relationships are an integral part of your professional life. You build community in your classroom, on your team and with families. People might say that this comes naturally to you, but you understand that this is very intentional work that is more than just being a “people person.” You acknowledge, value, and celebrate the identities and contributions of your community in all their forms.

Seeker of Solutions: You always seek to improve personally and professionally. When faced with a problem or challenge, you analyze the situation and ask thoughtful questions to lead you to the strongest solution. You couple this desire for improvement with a relentless optimism and ensure tackling problems doesn’t deter you from seeing the amazing gifts of your community.

Master Communicator: You are (or are working to be) a master communicator. You know the importance of listening, asking questions and leading with vulnerability. You prioritize direct, compassionate communication over the absence of tension and seek to channel conflict in positive ways that leads to greater healing and wholeness for the community.

Strong Teammate: You recognize the interdependence of a team and realize that trust is demonstrating commitment, openness to feedback and accountability to each of your teammates. You are nimble enough to handle a startup school environment and can take initiative when needed. When the need to be flexible or adapt arises, it does not interfere with your ability to be successful and stay positive.
